Abstract
This talk will describe a new cryptographic primitive called a verifiable delay function (VDF) and the mathematics needed to construct it. We will explain some of the applications for VDFs, but will mostly focus on their construction and open problems in the area.